ALPHA SIGS TAKE INTERFRATERNITY LEAGUE HONORS

Fast Games Conclude Series, Dekes Taking Second Position.

In a game full of action and thrills the Alpha Sigs came out on top, giving them the Inter-fraternity League cup Monday night in the gymnasium. Casey, the Alpha Sig star, put five through the loop in the early part of the game; this broke the hopes of the B. K.'s, but it did not quench their fighting spirit. It was a nip and tuck tussle to the final whistle. The Beta Kappas made many tries at the loop but only a few succeeded in finding the net. The game ended at 28 to 12.

Delta Kappa Epsilon has second place in the league. They have another game to play, but it will not affect their standing. Their game with S. P. E. cinched second place for them. Webber hit back into his stride by scoring 11 out of a total of 20 points for the Dekes. Jones led the scoring for the losers with three baskets. The victors managed to pile up a seven point lead in the first half, which they held throughout the game that ended 20 to 11.

S. P. E. took another tumble Feb. 28, when the K. D. R.'s won by a score of 22 to 7. Cook and Hindes scored all the points for the winners while Jones again starred for the Sig Eps.

On March 2, there was a fast game between the Chi Psi and the D. U. teams. The score at the end of the half was 10 to 4 in favor of the Chi Psis. D. U. rallied in the second half by out scoring the winners, but they could not overcome the long lead. Hinman and Eddy were the bright lights of the game, each looping four baskets. The score was 20 to 15.

In what is considered the biggest upset of the season, the Beta Kaps triumphed over the K. D. R.'s by a score of 16 to 15. The B. K.'s led the scoring in the first half at 9 to 6. The second half showed more hard playing than any game this season. Hoffman, the K. D. R.'s star, again led them by scoring nine points. H. Tomlinson and Hackett, each scored 6 points for the B. K.'s.

A. S. P. won from Delta Sigma March 3, by a score of 32 to 10. Wolfskehl, Miller, and Casey starred for the Alpha Sigs, while Howe was high point man for the Delta Sigs.

The Neutrals won their final game by defeating the D. U.'s 32 to 12. Cort and Williams piled up the points for the Neutrals while Harris was high scorer for D. U.

In the game that completed their schedule the Beta Kappas lost to the Chi Psis 16 to 1. The first half was a good hard fighting game, but the second was rather ragged. The feature of the game was close guarding.

D. U. and B. K. will not play out their tie game, because it will not affect the first four places in the league standings. The Dekes will play the Chi Psis in the final league game of the season tonight, at McCullough gymnasium. The result will not affect the Deke standing, but a defeat would give the Chi Psis tie for third place.

League standings:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct
A. S. P.	8	0	1000
D. K. E.	6	1	857
Neutrals	5	3	625
K. D. R.	5	3	625
Chi Psi	4	3	571
B. K.	3	4	429
S. P. E.	3	5	375
D. U.	1	6	143
D. S.	0	8	000

D. U. and B. K. each have a tie.

DEBATING TEAM WINS VICTORY FROM M.A.C.

Judges Vote Affirmative Argument Superior Two To One.

Taking the affirmative of a debating question that has been lost by the University of Vermont, Tufts, and Boston University, the Middlebury team set a precedent Friday evening at Mead Chapel when it defeated the M. A. C. representatives by a 2 to 1 vote of the judges. The question was:

"Resolved: That the United States should cancel the loans made to its associates during the World War." The victory was due in large part to her especially strong rebuttal.

In part the affirmative presented the following argument: "First, Europe cannot pay her debts. France, Italy, and Belgium intended to get their money from German reparations, but Germany is unable to pay. She must pay in goods, but how can she when she has lost the greater part of her resources through the transferring of some of her most valuable territory—Alsace-Lorraine, for instance, to other countries."

The second affirmative speaker declared that "it would be disastrous for Europe to pay her debts. Furthermore, it would be economically injurious to the United States if the debts were paid. We are overburdened with currency now, and payment would mean concentration of gold here, with subsequent stagnation in industry, and a general slump in the purchasing power of the dollar."

The third argument was relative to the moral duty of the United States to cancel the debts. "The war was common cause; we had our own interests; and we let the allies fight our battles and bear our own burdens until we entered. And are we to repay France for the debt we owe for her help in our fight for indepenence by keeping her in perpetual bondage?"

Middlebury's team, which was coached by Professor Wm. Northrop Morse, was made up of Samuel W. Pattee, '29, Edward F. Landon, '29, Maurice J. Page, '30, and Willard B. Eastman, '28, alternate. Pattee gave the rebuttal.

The arguments presented by the M. A. C. negative side were as follows: "Why cannot France pay us when she is planning to spend seven billions on military fortifications, and is maintaining an army of 640,000 Men? Payment and not cancellation. is the square thing. The United States has already done as much as justice and equity demand. It was their war. And why shouldn't our losses be considered? Admitted that Europe can't pay us in gold, payment by securities would be simple and an advantage to both sides. The United States as the banker nation of the

GLEE CLUB SINGS IN THE NATIONAL CONTEST SATURDAY

N. E. Champion Club Will Vie With Best Clubs in United States.

Middlebury's New England Champion Glee Club leaves Friday night for New York City where it will compete with thirteen other clubs in the National Contest to be held at Carnegie Hall the following evening. This contest is under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Musical Council and will assemble the finest and most talented clubs of the country.

Among the competitors for the national championship are: University of California, Fordham, Princeton, Yale, Middlebury, Dartmouth, New York University, Wesleyan, Furman, Columbia, as well as the winners of the Ohio, Pennsylvania and Missouri Valley districts. Many of these clubs are nationally and internationally famous.

Intensive practice has been in order for the past week and Professor Owen is confident that the club will display good performance at the contest.

The Middlebury club will broadcast a short program from station WEAF, Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. While in New York its headquarters will be the Murray Hill Hotel. The members will be entertained by the Harvard Club Saturday noon.

Delta Upsilon Holds Initiation.

At the annual formal initiation and banquet of Delta Upsilon fraternity Saturday evening nine freshmen were initiated into the Middlebury chapter. Edward R. Allen, Ralph C. Carlson, Burditt W. Collins, Raymond S. Franzoni, Russel W. Hinman, Gordon H. Melbye, Arthur L. Pierce, Sanford S. Witherell, and Theodore H. Zaremba are the new men.

The toastmaster for the banquet was Alfred Houghton, '25. Toasts were given by Arnold B. Swift, '21, Henry H. Stone, '18, Jack Leonard, Williams, '15, Professor Perley C. Voter, Bowdoin, '09, Herbert Riegelman, '25, Charles H. Shedd, '27, Arthur St. J. Whiting, '27, and Theodore Zaremba, '30.

Other guests from the Williams chapter were William Bryan, George McKnight, Casius Curtis, and Julian Hargreaves.

Following the banquet the annual bridge tournament with the Williams representatives was held. The Middlebury team won again by a 1800 point margin.

J. L. Donnelly ex-'23 is now associated with Lamborn, Hutchings & Co., 7 Wall Street, New York and writes market letters for their customers in Chicago, Havana and San Francisco.

CAST FOR "KEMPY" REHEARSING DAILY

"Kempy," a three-act American comedy chosen for the annual Freshman play, is being rehearsed daily in anticipation of its production on the evenings of March 16 and 17 at the Playhouse, under the direction of Edna Graham, '27, assisted by Mary Barker, '27.

The play deals with amusing complications which occur in a middle class American family when it comes time to marry off the eligible daughters to equally eligible young men. "Dad" Bence is the head of the family, prominent in match-making schemes by which he hopes to relieve himself of the financial strain incurred by his grown-up daughters; he is similar in type to "Grumpy" with whom Middlebury audiences are familiar. The role of "Dad" is taken by Jefferis Pennington.

"Ma" Bence is a gray-haired middle-aged lady, as puzzled and bewildered by the new-fangled ideas of her children as "Dad" Bence is dismayed and disgusted by them. Elizabeth Dyer plays the part of "Ma." Jane, played by Norma Howard, is the only married daughter of the family; her husband, Ben Wade, is a typical small town business man of the hail-fellow-well-met variety, an Elk, a Mason, a Rotarian and the rest. Laurence Wilson appears in this role.

Helen Simpson takes the part of Katherine Bence, the second daughter, thought by herself and her family to possess a great deal of genius. In accordance with this, Kate is sent to New York for cultural training, which does her little good, since in reality she is ordinary and quite stupid. "Dad" makes great efforts to marry Kate to "Duke" Merrill, a forty year-old millionaire lawyer, played by William Wheatley. Bernice Sargent appears as Ruth Bence, the youngest daughter, who seems especially attractive to Kempy.

Arthur Pierce plays the title role, that of Kempy, an idealistic plumber with ambitions to become an architect. He has been greatly inspired by a novel entitled "Angie's Temptation" and, while doing some plumbing work in the Bence household, he rashly declares that he will marry the unknown young woman who wrote this masterpiece. The author chances to be Katherine Bence and for a while Kempy' romantic announcement deafens her ears to the clinking of gold in "Duke" Merrill's pocket. This is not at all as it should be, and complications set in. Highly entertaining situations result, and three acts of wholesome American comedy are enacted.

Tickets for "Kempy" are on sale at Frost's Pharmacy with Dramatic Club tickets good for a reduction in price at both performances.

By PAUL WOLFSKEHL

Another Middlebury basketball season passed into history Wednesday night when the varsity conquered M. A. C. 23-17. The final margin of ten points was rather a surprise and even more so when the visitors proceeded to beat Vermont the next night. However the victory was well earned and the Blue team was forced hard the entire 40 minutes.

A good deal of the game was uninteresting basketball and never approached the rest of the games that have been played here this year. Especially in the first half neither team showed much spirit and both were content to play a guarding game. The second half was a little different story dotted by flashes of good playing.

Hardly had the game started when Sorenson put a pretty one hand shot through the hoop from the side. Franzoni followed this with a foul and the home team were away in the lead. It was only to last a few minutes for baskets by the visitors gave them the margin. With a lead the red jerseys resorted to a close five man defense which Middlebury found hard to penetrate. Forced to shoot from the middle of the floor Palmer finally found a basket and Hasseltine celebrated his last game with another.

From then on it was slow baskebtall with the visitors running into the lead. With twenty seconds to go and the Blue four points behind Franzoni let one go from the middle of the floor that went clean through the hoop bringing the score to 11-9 as the whistle blew.

A different Middlebury team came on the floor to start the second half and when Franzoni added another point the score was tier. From then on the Blue was never headed. Baskets by Palmer and Sorenson added to the lead and although M. A. C. tried desperately to break through, the Middlebury defense was able to hold them in check.

PHI BETA KAPPA.

Seven members of the Senior class have just been awarded the highest purely scholastic honor that may come to an undergraduate. It is therefore a good opportunity to consider just what Phi Beta Kappa should mean to the average college student.

There are two extremes from which the society is sometimes regarded, each of which is equally wrong. One viewpoint is that the "key" is of sufficient value to be worth four years of constant grinding study, to the exclusion of most other phases of college life. The second is that the name is so synonomous with 'grind" that to belong to it is a disgrace. Between the two obviously lies the truth.

It is a self evident fact that to become a member of Phi Beta Kappa means making some sacrifices. And the degree to which an individual must practice such abnegation is the index as to whether the attainment is worth his while.

If a student upon entering college is naturally a good scholar and feels that without unduly prejudicing general development he can, by a little extra effort, and by a little sacrifice of transient pleasure, maintain a Phi Beta Kappa grade he should try to do so. For Phi Beta Kappa is unquestionably a great honor and is often of real help. But he should try to gain it only if he can accomplish it without withdrawing from participation in other affairs, and without warping his study program to insure good grades.

If on the other hand he is only an average student, and knows that obtaining the requisite grades will mean an unremitting grind, or else radical changes in his course of study he should not try to obtain the honor. After all the value of Phi Beta Kappa lies not in the key, but in the ability and character that earned the same. To grind out that key, or to cheapen it, is to render it valueless, as standing not for high mental ability, but only for a perverted development.

The purpose of life is to live, and the primary requisite is general development. If to that you can add the golden key so much the better, but if you must give that up in order to earn the honor, much better leave "Phi Bete" alone.

Phi Beta Kappa is an honorary society; which means that to derive the most good from it the new member must do more than bask in its glory; he must have so conducted himself that by his own membership he adds to the society a new though infinitesimal honor.

THE HATS OF HONOR.

Very soon now the first of the Honorary Society elections will take place. It is to be hoped that the present members of Delta Tau, Sage and Waubanakee will feel especially this year their obligation to so choose their successors that the prestige of their respective societies may be maintained and strengthened.

The three societies were all established primarily to reward and encourage participation in undergraduate activities. They were graded in importance with Waubanakee at the top representing "the highest honor that the men's college bestows for marked ability and faithful service in extra-curricula activities."

Such was and should be their only purpose. However in the past few years, particularly in the case of Sage and Delta Tau, the societies have lost somewhat of their prestige owing to apparent forgetfulness of the fact that the members should be chosen on past records and not merely on future hopes. Together with this there has seemed to be undue partiality for athletic candidates, to the exclusion of representatives of other branches of undergraduate endeavor. Not that good athletes are not among the most outstanding of underclassmen and deservedly so. But they should not completely so predominate if the original purpose of the societies is to be maintained. Another evil has apparently been undue fraternity bickering in the case of the lower societies.

The Campus last spring asked the question "What price glory?" and concluded that it came cheaply.

The present members of the societies have before them a fine opportunity to vindicate their organizations, to disapprove such an accusation, and to justify their own election. We are sure that if they but realize this they will see to it that their choices are such that, from the standpoint of the college, Waubanakee, Sage and Delta Tau will regain their untarnished pristine glory.

"LET'S NOT THINK."

In the "Outlook" for March 2 there appears an anonymous article "Let's Not Think," written by an American college undergraduate. Therein the author condemns in no uncertain terms what he considers to be the present prevailing collegiate attitude toward really serious thought. According to him the present day students not only fail to take thought either for themselves or for the morrow, but actually resent any efforts undertaken by others to make them do so.

Of course the most caustic critics of youth are apt to be youths themselves once they get started. And the article errs in that it implies too sweeping a generality and fails to consider the possibility of the existence of a goodly number of exceptions. Nevertheless it cannot be denied that there is far more than a modicum of truth in the statements made. While the fact that the "Outlook" publishes it certainly entitles it to consideration.

Three extracts from it are particularly interesting: "How hard a student will work to avoid thinking."—"Think—Good Lord we young folks don't know how to think. This is proved by the fact that most fellows and girls can't bear their own company. Always they must be in a crowd."—"We hate to think because it is too obvious that if we start it means a lot of work for us."

This undergraduate indictment applies as much to Middlebury as anywhere else. All who have not already read the article should do so and then ask themselves if it does not apply to them as individuals.

Both of the one-act plays to be given this evening were written in the playwriting class under the supervision of Professor W. Northrop Morse. "The Open Door" by Blanche Walker, '27 will be presented under the direction of the author herself; and Helen French, '28, is producing "Blind" by Paul Wolfskehl, '27.

Sixty Chicago pastors have promised to preach on the streets of that city this season, in an effort to take the Gospel to those who will not seek it in the church.

Alpha Sigma Phi Banquet.

The annual Initiation Banquet of the Alpha Delta Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi was held at its house on Sunday evening. Marshall M. Klevenow, '25, acted as toastmaster and the following answered toasts: Seniors, Scott A. Babcock, '27; Juniors, Albert D. Leahy, '28; Sophomores, D. Francis Howe, '29; Freshmen, Glenn B. McNary, '30.

The new members of the fraternity are Frank A. Balkus, '30, Lynn, Mass.; John W. Carver, '30, Lynn, Mass.; Roland A. Casey, '30, Franklin, Mass.; Richard J. Humeston, '30, Dover Plains, N. Y.; Ralph S. Johnson, '30, Lynn, Mass.; John P. MacDonald, '30, Springfield, Mass.; Glenn B. MacNary, '30, Bloomfield, N. J.; Richard P. Miller, '30, Mt. Hermon, Mass.

Prof. Huet to Address French Club.

Prof. Eugene Huet will speak on "Edmond Rostand, L'Incarnation de l'Esprit Francaise," at the Chateau Friday evening ,March 11. All members of the French Club and those interested in French are invited to the meeting. Prof. Huet recently spoke on this same subject at Worcester and will also lecture on it at Albany in the near future

Bulbulian, '25, Elected Associate Member of Sigma Xi

Arthur H. Bulbulian, Middlebury College, B. S., '25 and M. S., '26, former instructor in the department of biology and now a graduate student in biology at Brown University, has been recently elected to associate membership in the national honorary scientific fraternity, Sigma Xi. Associate membership in this organization for undergraduate and graduate students is based on general scholarship, especially in the laboratory sciences, and on promise of accomplishment in scientific research. On the completion of an acceptable piece of original research the Sigma Xi key and full membership in the society are granted to associate members.

COMMUNICATION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CAMPUS:

May we of the Women's College who are interested in Y. W. be allowed a little space in the CAMPUS to state a few facts to the Middlebury students at large?

Is it true or not that the CAMPUS publishes the news of Middlebury College which is of interest to the students and alumni? If this is indeed one of the purposes and aims of the CAMPUS board then why is it that often news is turned in to the editor's office which is of interest to a large group of students and yet is never published? There is in Middlebury a comparatively large number of women interested in Y. W. C. A. Yet, whenever it is desired to advertise a Y. W. project and material is submitted to members of the CAMPUS board for publication the notice is never printed but the space which might be used for it is occupied with "Old Gold" cigarette advertisements.

There are 115 women who are members of the Middlebury Y. W. C. A. Information concerning membership of Y. M. C. A. is not at hand but it is probably considerably less than 115. Yet there was an article of 30 lines concerning the Y. M. meeting in the CAMPUS two weeks ago and only 16 lines devoted to the Y. W. meeting—a total of 46 lines against the 106 devoted to drama review. There was no account of the Northfield Conference given in the CAMPUS although Middlebury sent two delegates to this convention which was of such great interest to Harvard, Massachusetts Instiute of Technology, Smith and Holyoke. There was however an article of 50 lines plus big headlines given over to the Yale Dramatic Conference. There was also no account given of the annual Y. W. Bazaar this year which proved its importance on campus by making a net profit of $200.

We of the Women's College are not disputing the superiority (?) of the Men's College, neither are we making an attempt to wet-blanket the Dramatic Club—we merely are stating facts as they are and asking for aid.

When it comes to the last analysis we, the inhabitants of the women's side of the hill desire the cooperation and assistance of the CAMPUS in putting Y. W. across. Are we going to get this cooperation?

I.; A. Newcomb, Wakefield, Mass., and W. Cole, Bradford.

WOMEN HAVE THREE DEBATES SCHEDULED

On account of the Freshman Play the date of the women's debate at Burlington with the University of Vermont has been changed to March 14. The question is, "Resolved: That it would be beneficial to give Congress the power to enact uniform marriage and divorce laws." Middlebury will take the negative. A modified Oxford plan will be followed whereby each speaker is allowed 12 minutes. The first speaker on each side will divide her time, giving eight minutes to the initial speech and four minutes to rebuttal. Those making the trip are: Ruby Elwell, '27, Gretchen Taylor, '29, Eloise White, '29, and alternate, Muriel Johnson, '30. Miss Elwell and Miss Taylor are members of Tau Kappa Alpha.

Middlebury will uphold the affirmative of the question on cancellation of war debts against New Hampshire's team. This debate will be held at Durham some time in the immediate future. The team consists of: Gwendolyn Thatcher, '28, Florence Porter, '28, Lara Wheaton, '29, and alternate Elizabeth McDermott, '29. Miss Thatcher is a member of Tau Kappa Alpha also, while Miss Wheaton won second prize last year in the Freshman Women's Debate.

Arrangements have been completed for a debate in Mead Chapel on March 22 with St. Lawrence. Middlebury will uphold the negative of the war debts question.

It is estimated that $100,000 worth of U. S. coin is lost yearly.

MRS. PRINCE GIVES VOCATIONAL TALK

Founder of Simmons Graduate School Lectures On Store Work.

Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince lectured on store education at Pearson's Social Hall Friday evening, March 4. Mrs. Prince is the founder of the famous Prince School, now a graduate school of Simmons College.

In speaking of the work at the school, she said in part:

"The first two weeks are spent in training at the school, then selling in some of the large Boston department stores alternates for an equal period of time throughout the year. The girls are employed in different stores during each working period, in order to increase their experience, for no two stores are alike. The systems of the various stores are studied during the first three months. The students are employed as cashiers, or in the stock room, marking goods, one hour each day being devoted to general discussion of the groups engaged in the various stores. A written report is required of every girl at the end of each working period.

"The training in the merchandise department, although an interesting field in itself, does not number so many students as does the personnel department.

"In the line of advertising there is a great opportunity for girls who have that type of ability. Work in window display, at the adjustment bureau and mail order department are also promising.

"The Prince School trains teachers for this same course as is offered on a smaller scale in city high schools. Others of the graduates are employed as factory superintendents. A few prefer the variety offered in a small store to the restricted, specialized work required in larger ones."

Mrs. Prince closed her talk with a plea for the efficient leadership in this line of social education, which can only be supplied by college graduates.

Miss Blackburn Speaks at Y. W. C. A.

Miss Pearl Blackburn, of Richford, Vt., Middlebury '23, was the speaker at the Y. W. C. A. meeting held Tuesday evening, March 1, in the Y. W. C. A. room at Pearson's. Miss Blackburn spoke most interestingly on her experiences in Mexico where she spent the past year, arousing the enthusiasm of her audience by her vivid description of the conditions, manner of living, and customs of the Mexican people.

A 'cello selection was given by Marjorie Cross, '28. Elizabeth Bean, '27, conducted the meeting.

Miss Virginia Kirk, Graduate of Drake University, '17, and of the Yale School of Nursing, will speak at Pearson's Social Hall, Friday evening, March 11 at 7:15. Before entering the Yale School of Nursing she had experience in Social Service in both the United States and China.

Appointments for personal conferences Saturday morning with Miss Kirk may be made at the Dean's office.

SEVEN ELECTED PHI BETA KAPPA

Unusually Small Number in Senior Class Attain Average.

Elections to Phi Beta Kappa were announced in chapel Thursday, Mar. 3, by Professor William Burrage. An unusually small percentage of the senior class has attained the required average of eighty-seven and one-half, only four being elected from the Women's College and three from the Men's College.

The members-elect are as follows:

Gunhild Augusta Elfstrom
Anna Gordon Lewis
Eleanor Esther Manley
Rachel Louise Spear
Howard Walden Cutler
Carl John Ellsworth
David Hubbard Williams

Miss Elfstrom, of Worcester, Mass., has been very active in the German Club, serving as vice-president last year and president this year. She was also vice president of the Pyramid Club her junior year.

New Team Chosen To Debate With Vermont

From about fifteen men trying out for the debating team Monday afternoon in Old Chapel the following new team has been selected to contend with the University of Vermont at Mead Memorial Chapel on Friday, March 18: Edward F. Landon, Albert D. Leahy, Gordon E. Wiley, and Scott A. Babcock, alternate.

At this debate Middlebury will take the negative of the resolution "The United States shall cancel all loans made to its associates during the world war." The team to partake in the out-of-town debates will probably to be chosen from those who have participated in debating activities this season.

DRAMA REVIEW

"ROSALIND"
By J. M. Barrie
Cast

Mrs. Page_____Doris Collins, '29
Dame Quickly_____Ruth Bly, '29
Charles Roder____Ronald Burows, '29

Directed by Katherine Burtis, '28 and Ruth Howard, '29.

"Rosalind" by J. M. Barrie was the first one-act play presented at the Dramatic Club last Thursday evening, March 3. The play itself is an excellent one, with the sure touch of Barrie's art behind it, and we appreciate the good judgment of Miss Burtis in the choice of her production. The set she used was very attractive with a true small cottage air about it. The cast, perhaps, did not do all that it might have done to make the play a complete success. Miss Bly was satisfying, to be sure. Miss Collins was not quite all that we had expected of her. Once the transformation from "forty and a bittock" to "twenty-nine at the most" had been made, Miss Collins was excellent, with all the vivaciousness that made her such a success in "Dulcy," but as a middle-aged lady, neither her make-up nor her manner was quite convincing. As for Mr. Burrows, he was not exactly at home on the stage, although there was something in his ingenuousness that seemed in accord with the part he was playing. When both memories and prompters fail, however, the result is distressing; we managed to enjoy "Rosalind" despite the awkward pauses, but we hope that such will not happen again.

"CASUAL WATERS"
By Edward Payson Crane
Adapted from a short story by Frank Condon.
Cast

Dr. Bozeman Hatcher_____A. D. Leahy
Polly Hatcher_____Mary-Alice Drake
Grover Marmion____Edward P. Crane
Mrs. Tilton Byce_____Bety Cady
Mr. Tilton Byce_____Samuel Pattee
Numi Byce_____Lou Thompson

Again we have Mr. Crane with us, as actor and playwright once more. "Casual Waters," is a light, thoroughly entertaining comedy. The dialogue invented by Mr. Crane was very clever and we feel sure that the play would be quite as amusing to other audiences as it was to us last Thursday evening.

Mr. Crane was included in the selective cast chosen for this premiere production of "Casual Waters," but he was not so convincing in this play as he has been at other times. If there is such a term as over-acted, we would apply it to Mr. Crane's interpretation of Grover Marmion; or perhaps what troubled us was that we had seen approximately the same gestures and mannerisms used not so very long ago. We would like to see Mr. Crane in an entirely different role next time.

The other members of the cast have been before our eyes quite recently, too, with the exception of Miss Cady who seems to possess considerable acting poise and who did very well as Mrs. Byce. Mr. Young was especially good, supplying a sizable portion of the play's comic element. Mr. Pattee and Mr. Leahy lent skillful touches of comedy, and Misses Thompson and Drake were quite all that could be desired.

The setting was exceptional, the glimpse of the golf course at the rear being colorful and cleverly designed. The make-up was not completely satisfying in either of the evening's plays; the errors came chiefly in the effort to make young ladies look middle-aged, and it seems as though there should be a better method of securing such an illusion than the obvious black marks and blotches used last Thursday evening.

All in all, "Casual Waters" was one of the most enjoyable plays presented so far this semester and we offer our congratulations to Mr. Walker and Mr. Deedman, the directors, as well as to their well chosen cast.

"RELIGION" IS THEME OF VESPERS SPEAKER

Bishop Booth Talks on Text "What Went Ye Out To See."

Bishop Samuel B. Booth, D. D., of Burlington, spoke at Vespers Sunday on the real meaning of religion, taking as his text Matthew 11:7, "What went ye out to see?"

"Although we may not realize it, religion is the most important subject discussed by the American people today," said Bishop Booth. "In those colleges and universities where chapel attendance is no longer compulsory, a mere handful of students may attend. Yet you can always find the others grouping together in spare time for heated discussions on religion.

"What are we going out to see in religion? What is it supposed to answer? What are we supposed to get out of it? Many want religion for an index of the current drift of things so that they may 'get there' first, and get along best in the world. In many cases, religion is a screen of self-deception, an interpretation of life that says we can do as we please, that excuses us of moral responsibilities, and that takes out all possible moral obligations. Too many want that kind of a religion, just 'a reed shaken with the wind,' but it doesn't appeal to real people. The religious interest of the man who desires only to be economically and socially important is not religious interest but self-interest. The economic motive is working its way into everything; now our morals must be for our comfort and prosperity. Is religion, in your opinion, simply a means of obtaining economic and social success?

"We grow tired of so much talk on religion, and want to be alone for quiet meditation. Our religion should be an object for our undivided admiration, loyalty, and trust, in all our discussions, all our reading about religion. We are going out to see a revelation of a divine person and of a real friend; we are going out to see the truth of God, and to learn of Him as He is revealed through Jesus Christ. Christ is the answer to the questions. The quest for Almighty God asks us to pay great prices. The 'reed shaken with the wind,' the human desire to be the wealthy man in the palace—these must all be subordinated to One whom we may obey. Seeking Jesus Christ as the great answer to the question 'What go ye out to see?'—Jesus Christ whom we may find always as we do today."

Fourteen per cent of the students in women's colleges work their way through school, a survey indicates.

The Women's Athletic Council in a meeting held at Pearson's Wednesday, March 2, voted to pay the sustaining membership fee of $25 to the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation. Last year only two-thirds of the estimated budget was in hand, and now the organization faces the wall unless immediate action in the form of five thousand new members is secured. This goal must be reached by March 15th.

Middlebury's decision was made wholeheartedly, with the earnest desire that the required membership will be realized in order to maintain the existence of this splendid organization which is only three and a half years old with a membership of slightly over 500, several foreign countries being represented.

The Women's Division works for the promotion of physical activity for the largest possible proportion of persons in any group rather than for a limited number chosen for their physical prowess. They are opposed to all competition involving travel, and particularly that which emphasizes individual accomplishment rather than the development of sportsmanship among the many. They endeavor to protect athletics from commercialization and to discourage sensational publicity. Especially is the organization interested in the training of leaders, and in placing properly qualified women in charge of all physical activities for women. Their platform also includes the securing of adequate medical examinations; and proper facilities for all activities.

world must live up to her reputation, and an addition of seven billions capital would increase reliance in her.

"As for Europe, payment would strengthen her reputation for sound business. Would it be a hardship for Germany to pay? Somewhat; but we must not misplace our sympathy, nor be too indulgent. Furthermore, the debts are not to be paid in one year, but in sixty-two years, and we may take somthing in goods and something in services. Europe must be shown that she can't do that sort of thing, for after all it was her war. Finally, Europe can pay, for the fact remains that she is making payments." The negative speakers were M. H. Goldberg, H. J. Harris, and Ralph W. Haskins.

The judges were Nathaniel C. Peterson of Proctor, Dr. V. W. Waterman of Vergennes, and Supt. of Schools George W. Patterson, of Vergennes. Miss Rachel Poole opened the program with an organ solo, "Sonata-C Minor" by Guilmant, and Mr. Arthur Yeaw gave a violin solo, Kronold's "Air Religieux." President Paul D. Moody presided.

[Upper classmen in smoke-shop, buying Camels]

Top in quality—first in popularity

EXPERIENCED smokers have proved it. Discriminating tobacco lovers by the million rediscover it each day and every evening as the friendly Camels are lighted. There simply is no better cigarette made. The choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown are bought for Camels—and such blending for taste and fragrance! Only the largest tobacco organization in the world could produce a cigarette like Camel.

In terms of popularity, Camel quality has reflected itself in the greatest preference ever given a cigarette. There never was a tobacco word so famous, or a cigarette so good. First in popularity, because the best—that is the story of Camel, the biggest cigarette success ever known.

If you want such smoking enjoyment as you never hoped to find, just try Camels. Smooth, fragrant and mellowy mild, from the first touch of the flame to the final puff, Camel will mean a revelation to you of tobacco goodness. For pleasure unalloyed, for the best that's made regardless of price, "Have a Camel!"
